

CTF Teaching and Learning Strategy

Ecumenical Formation	Our programmes will be shaped to enable students to experience formation in a confessional and ecumenical context. Our students will be able to draw on the insights of their own tradition, and they will be ready and willing to build bridges with Christians of other traditions and to foster encounter with people of other faiths.
Integrated Learning	Our programmes will be designed and enhanced to enable students to become practical theologians in the broadest sense. Our students will have a secure yet enquiring faith that neither fears new questions nor ignores ancient wisdom in addressing them. They will be equipped to integrate theology and experience in thought and life.
A Global Context	Our programmes will be informed by and designed to resource the worldwide church. Our students will prepare for vocations of ministry, scholarship, or professional practice, so that they will be ready and able to respond to the changing face of church and society in a global context.
